AWS Readies Fashion Show

Freshmen girls and their "big sisters" for the AWS Big Sister unit will be the special guests at the AWS fashion show Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Multi-purpose room of the Smith Family Living Center.

The show is part of the Welcome Freshmen program sponsored by the AWS and chairman by Maureen Geist. Models for the fashion show will be BYU students who will wear clothes they have made or own.

Focus Attention To Top Student Says Crockett

"Much attention has been focused on superior students since graduation. Here at Brigham Young University we are planning to focus a greater amount of attention on the superior student through a specially designed program."

President Earl C. Crockett, as president in charge of BYU's academic program, welcomed the scholarship award winners in Smith Auditorium with a prognostication of academic success Tuesday afternoon.

The plan to begin a special program for superior students at BYU will be considered fully by administration and faculty at the next meeting. President Crockett said President Crockett represented Pres. Ernest L. Wilkinson who was unable to attend.

Students who have received scholarships or awards to continue their studies at BYU were greeted by Dean Wesley P. Lloyd. Lloyd told students that academic and spiritual education combine to make BYU a unique institution.

"Sake activities, devotional meetings and religion classes maintain a high level of spiritual education at this school. Programs such as those who are having fun, honoring those who have achieved accidentally, will maintain a high scholastic level, need a high respect for such academic achievement."

The program honored students for their leadership and ability in addition to scholastic achievement.

The next one is scheduled for next quarter, according to Dean Lloyd.

Frosh Hopefuls to Hear Election Rule Discussion

All freshmen planning to run for class offices must attend a general information meeting Wednesday at 5 p.m. in 260 Eyring Science Center, according to Max Pitcher, elections chairman.

During the meeting elections rules and procedures will be discussed and clarified for frosh hopefuls, Pitcher said.

Constitution tests are being given Wednesday and Thursday from 2 to 5 p.m. in Executive Council Conference Room, Clark Student Service Center basement. Office seekers must pass the test to be eligible for nomination at the official nominations meeting Friday at 5 p.m. in 260 Science Center.

Primary campaigning will be Monday and primary voting Tuesday. The two top candidates for each position will be notified Wednesday and final campaigning will be Thursday. Final voting is scheduled for Friday with the winners to be announced at a studentbody dance Saturday.

'Stag Night' To Hear Fuller

John Mooney, a Salt Lake Tribune sports writer, will interview Gene Fuller, former middleweight boxing champion, Thursday night at 7:30 during the Stag Night program in the Smith Fieldhouse, sponsored by Associated Men Students.

Films dealing with Fuller's main bouts will also be shown. Introduction of BYU coaches in each of the major sports will be included in the evening's program.

RED-HANDED REDSKINS — Caught on Y Mountain during the wee hours Tuesday morning, University of Utah student nurses hant it up for the camera. Eight female nurses and two male students studying nursing were apprehended by security police and D-7 volunteers. Read about how the Redskins were nabbed red-handed on page two.

Urge Units to Nominate 'Mirror of Years' Queen

by Dustin Harvey

University Area Campus Editor
All campus organizations are urged to nominate Homecoming Queen candidates for "Mirrors of Years," Homecoming 1958, according to Roger Dosey, Queen chairman.

Deadline for queen nominations has been extended to Oct. 15 to give all organizations time to select candidates.

Dosey said the girl nominated may be outside the organization that nominates her. He hopes a better cross-section of the studentbody will be represented by this year's candidates.

Apostle Brown Speaks Today

Hugh B. Brown, member of the Quorum of Twelve Apostles, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, speaks today in the first of the Wednesday devotional exercises.

Elder Brown, former Bishop and mission president, was ordained an Apostle at General Conference last April. He is also a former member of the Brigham Young University faculty.

IOC Plans Study Time For Joiners

The Inter-Organization Council met Monday for its first monthly meeting under the leadership of President Gary Driggs. Plans for Organization Week, which is scheduled for November 17-21, were discussed. Theme is to be "Let's Get Organized."

Plan Dance
Activities will include an assembly and a weekend dance, and other activities are planned to acquaint students with various organizations previous to rush week.

Driggs suggested that joining one of the various organizations is one of the most effective ways to make a success of the year's theme, "Friendship Unlimited." Slides and script used during orientation week were presented introducing the six types of organizations at Brigham Young University.

Dean Speaks
In a short speech Dean Wesley P. Lloyd praised student organization leaders for their efficient leadership. He said that things are done at BYU that are not done anywhere else in the world because of communication between students and faculty. This communication can come through the periodic sounding board where faculty and students discuss problems and needs.

Girls may be nominated by social, geographical, religious, departmental and service units and by other organized groups, such as musical groups.

All nominees will be judged separately by six judges in the first elimination. The field will be cut down to twelve girls by the judges who will represent the studentbody, the faculty and downtown Provo.

The second elimination will be in the form of a reception. Three judges will decide on the six finalists. The judges will be from the faculty and from Provo.

The studentbody will vote for the queen on Friday, Oct. 24. A queen and two attendants will be elected.

No Travel, Please

"A number of students have expressed a desire to attend the COO football game in Stockton, Calif., Oct. 11... but we call attention to University policy that discourages travel outside the state to attend football and basketball games."

Dean of Students Wesley P. Lloyd said the above statement, discouraging travel outside the state, followed a request by students that buses be chartered in order to attend the game. He said further that BYU demonstrated fine sportsmanship in the Utah football game and that all students are urged to support the team in ways that do not require mass travel outside the state.

Administration Alters Name; Now 'Council'

Name of the top administrative body at Brigham Young University has been changed from "University" to "Administrative Council." It was announced today by President Ernest L. Wilkinson.

Since President Wilkinson is the only person responsible to the Board of Trustees as president of the University and administrator of the LDS Church School System, the term "Presidency" was considered inaccurate.

Council Members
The Administrative Council also includes:

William Noble Waite, assistant to the president in charge of development funds.

Joseph T. Bentley, administrative assistant to the president, in charge of budget, auditing, treasurer's office, investments, retirement program and University auxiliary services.

William E. Berrett, vice president in charge of religious education and vice administrator of LDS Church School System.

Academic Leader
Dr. Earl C. Crockett, vice president in charge of the academic program and all faculty service matters.

Dr. Harvey L. Taylor, vice president of Brigham Young University and vice-administrator of LDS Church School System, in charge of student personnel services, registration and records, extension services and public relations services.

Clyde D. Sandgren, general counsel for Brigham Young University and LDS Church School System.

THOSE MISSIONARY DAYS

It doesn't take much at the old 'Y' to send one's thoughts zooming back into the mission-field. Friday night's Joe College assembly, devotional assemblies and religion classes . . . Brigham Young University tries hard to keep in the minds of its students the two or three years spent in the mission field.

A unique program, it is where a person donates time and money to teach the Christian principles of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Many of a returned missionary's fondest memories are of the old woman or the teen-ager emitting the cry of surprise when the principles of "working without hire" are explained.

RECALL THE MISSIONFIELD?

There are some 1700 returned missionaries on campus, according to the Monday forum assembly report by Pres. Ernest L. Wilkinson. It is expected that a good portion of that number will be attending conference in Salt Lake City or listening to it at home. Many will be forcibly reminded of the spiritual, the humorous and perhaps the sad, of the missionfield.

Yes, conference will remind the returned missionaries, excite others to go on missions.

But, how many forget within a week or two the precepts of the scriptures—the precepts that require sacrifice or unselfishness. . . or teach the knowledge-giving truths of the Saviour?

TOO IDEALISTIC?

Yes, we know this is the age of cynicism. In some circles this is thought necessary to be "smart," or "intellectual."

Here at BYU the opposite is taught. In the missionfield the opposite is taught.

It is easy to forget. What returned missionary would not testify that the field was the hardest experience of his or her life? Not many. If lived vividly at the time.

Life is easier at home. One is not expected to give up so many personal satisfactions i.e. golf on Wednesday if it seems relaxing, or sleep on Friday if one had a late date the night before, etc.

No, this is not an appeal to return en masse and bodily to the life of the field.

It is, as one freshman student so aptly said in a letter he wrote to the editor's office after a few days of fall quarter at his school, "When one speaks of the Spirit of the Y, what spirit is it? That is the Spirit of God."

Yes, we're all busy. We easily forget what we learned in the field. But, wouldn't it be well for us to remember those mission experiences occasionally? Might even be of benefit to someone.

Darn those house-to-house pep rallies.

LAST TIME

Dear Editor:

As a yell-leader representing the BYU this year, I feel that a clear, brief letter should be published concerning brother Clark's protest of last Friday regarding the yell participation at the Utah game. The protest, I feel, was justified. However, speaking for all 'yell yell leaders' we are as disappointed in the display and the resulting comments as any of you.

The primary thing we want to get across is that we are in no way connected with the "sixth" man that created the protest. At no time was it made known to us that we would have a sixth member working with or over and above us. I can assure the studentbody as well as the faculty and alumni that it will never happen again, as Brad, Sherm, Steve, Dick and I are in full sympathy with the situation, but at the same time fully behind the studentbody in our endeavors.

We had and have planned protests that embody the highest quality of sportsmanship and spirit and we believe that we can ably perform in a manner that can and will stimulate the "Y" eleven (and cabs) five out victory at any given place or time.

We felt especially sorry as it detracted from our long planning and preparation for the first and biggest game of the season. Future BYU victories shall not be "spilled" by similar display.

Respectfully,
Don C. Wright II,
Yell Leader

Ed. Note: Well said, but how did the 'extra' man get in there?

THE TUNNEL

Dear Editor:

I don't argue with the fact Heilman Hall boys should be courteous to motorists and use common sense in safety matters, but really! I'm not so sure jaywalking, 1968, concerns Heilman too much. It's like saying Heritage Hall girls that slam doors don't appreciate the sacrifices of their forerunners.

Why isn't the tunnel more widely traveled? Who has time to go through a tunnel that leads to a hill that leads to upper campus when your first class is in the fieldhouse?

Of course if you like singing, "We're on the Upward Trail!"

BYU Scholars Succeed. . .

Three Receive Wilson Fellowships

Three members of the 1958 class of Brigham Young University are beginning graduate work this year as Woodrow Wilson Fellows.

They are Harry G. Hecht, Hans W. Kelling and Phillip Y. Koldewyn.

These three BYU alumni are among the thousand prospective college teachers in the United States and Canada who are entering graduate school this fall as Woodrow Wilson National Fellowships.

Need for Teachers

Recognizing the critical need for college teachers, the Ford Foundation recently gave the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation $25,000,000 to aid outstanding first year graduate students. Each fellowship carries a living allowance of $4,400 for single students, with increments for dependents, and pays the full cost of tuition and fees. In order to be considered for a fellowship, a student must be nominated by a faculty member.

HANS WILHELM Kelling has entered Stanford University to study French and German literature. Completing high school work with high honors in Bremen, Germany, Kelling immigrated to the United States at the end of 1952. He served as a missionary for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the Eastern States from May 1953 to July 1955. He entered Brigham Young University in the autumn of 1955.

For outstanding leadership and service in the LDS Church, Mr. Kelling received the Master M-Men award last spring. He also was awarded an assistantship to teach a first year German class. He includes traveling, classical music, the fine arts, world literature and photography among his major interests.

Recently married, Mr. Kelling looks forward to a career in teaching. "To share with students a process of development; as they grow, I grow with them."

PHILIP YOUNG Koldewyn has entered the University of California at Berkeley to study romance languages and linguistics.

Previous to twenty-two months' service in the Army of which fifteen were spent in Korea, Koldewyn attended the University of Utah and San Bernardino Valley College. The second quarter of his sophomore year, he was called upon by the LDS Church to serve as a missionary among the Mexican people in the Southwestern United States.

At Brigham Young University, Koldewyn acted as president of the Inter-Organization Council, coordinating, legislative and planning body for some 120 student groups. He was active in Delta Phi national honorary fraternity (of former missionaries) and in Blue Key national honorary fraternity.

HARRY G. HECHT is continuing graduate study in physical chemistry at Brigham Young University.

My name's Alf Pratte. I'm a runner.

I was working the night run out of a local newspaper office Monday night about 10 p.m. when I got a hot tip from a hahn.

Crazy bunch of kids with pails and paint in hand, and malice in heart, in the vicinity of our beloved "Y".

My job. To find out what the heck's going on up there and to get a picture—if possible.

Dad—hand's in.

I immediately grabbed my trusty graflix, phoned my assistant, Sgt. Dan Sander of Heilman Hall D, and we were off. But it really wasn't us who were off. It was those vengeful Utes, who still can't get over losing.

The Chase
When we reached the base camp we were met by officer Golden Hardy of the BYU Security police. He said he knew who the artists were. All we had to do was get them down. We split up.

Leading the way up the hill was Fred E. Kuhn of D-7. Also included in the D-7 group were Don Eggerston, Lloyd Selpert, Allen Rowley, Don Holloway and Roger Langston, Gary Brinkman and Alf Fish.

James Fowler, Grant Burton, Kent Edge and Jon B. Wilson went around to flank them. I sat down and waited for more help.

Far below, the lights of Provo twinkled. They were laughing at me. I looked at my watch and yawned. It was ridiculous. But the most ridiculous thing about the whole matter was that eight girls should try to hike up the mountain at that time of the morning. Oh well, maybe they didn't know that we had found the "Y" bell already.

Catch Red-handed
About half an hour later the vigilantes emerged from the bushes with eight "bashed" girls and two males.

The eight were identified as student nurses from the University of Utah.

We took their names, but I later threw them away. I wanted to forget them.

Respectfully,

STOP FIRE

Dear Editor:
You mentioned in your editorial of October 4th, that the University had never seen down. As a point of interest, correction I give you that letter from Alma P. Burton's class G. Maeser."

The new rooms had been used only six months, however, when on the night of June 24, 1964, the night prior to the opening of the third year, the whole structure was destroyed by fire. There was insurance, and the very presence of the Academy, threatened.

Much of the furniture, however, was saved. On May 19, 1967, Principal Hecht called the faculty and students together, and through the operation of the school, the faculty, students, and parents, suitable quarters were set up for the two remaining terms of that year.

Sometime later, when looking at the blackened ruins, what had been the Brigham Young Academy, The Maeser said, "Yes, fire destroyed the house, but the Academy lives on." (p. 10)

So you say, let's be calm, it won't happen again.

BYU to Start FM Operations

Brigham Young University's station, KBYU, will change from AM to FM this December, announced Gary Bush, station manager.

At present, the station does broadcast all day and does reach out over all the Provo area. This conversion will allow the station to be picked up over much greater area.

Programming schedules being worked out now to be effective when the change include several music programs. Emphasis will be placed on classical, semi-classical and popular ballad type music.

Staff members to help work out the change are needed now, Bush pointed out. Positions are open in announcing, newscasting, engineering and secretarial or publicity work.

Bush may be contacted for more information in room 147 of Speech Center.

Program Bureau Hunts Talent; Seeks 'All Kinds' of Workers

The completely re-organized Brigham Young University Program Bureau is now looking for student talent, according to Marilyn Neekley, talent director. There are openings for emcees, newscasters, stage designers, layout artists, and stage hands in addition to all kinds of performers.

BYU Program Bureau can use any kind of talent that an audience would enjoy. Variety numbers such as magicians, jugglers, and male tap dancers are especially in demand. Vocal, dance, instrumental solo and group can also be used.

The Program Bureau supplies talent to a 200-mile radius. Talent is sent to banquets, civic clubs, hospitals, radio and television stations, weddings and stakes, and schools and BYU campus.

The Program Bureau also presents several large scale variety shows to BYU student body. Recently they are working on a house Frolics, which they produce in cooperation with the talent body.

Also the Bureau takes many student tours all over the West, such as the Happy Holidays tour. They also make several high school contact tours.

One example of how active the bureau does become is that last year within a 132-day period over 400 shows were presented.

James Lawrence, Program Bureau chairman, is in charge of bookings. Talent training and induction of shows is up to Mr. Fontelle Messervy, program coordinator. Marilyn Neekley is talent director.

Campus organizations can obtain programs for all occasions if they contact the bureau 2 weeks in advance.

All types of talent can be secured from rock and roll to Hawaiian numbers.

The rehearsal schedule is as follows: Monday nights, small vocal groups; Thursdays, dance groups; Fridays, instrumentals and Saturdays, full show rehearsals.

Cats Hope For Upset Against COP

"We can't look back at a time like this," resolved Brigham Young University's head football coach, Harold Kopp, after his Cougars had their conference title hopes darkened on Saturday by upset Colorado State, 32-6.

"We've got what will probably be our toughest game of the year coming up this week-end against College of the Pacific in Stockton," Kopp went on. "That is, if they can get much tougher than the CSU game," he added.

COP is reputedly the strongest team in the West, having beaten strong Arizona State and California. "They've had two weeks to get ready for us, which makes our job that much harder," said Kopp.

About the only consolation that Brigham Young had after their humiliation at the hands of the Rams was the fact that the Cougars suffered only one injury in the game, Fred Wittingham, who replaced right end Curtis Brown, sidelined by a broken arm in the Utah game, suffered an ankle sprain.

Kopp indicated that he would probably go with Fred Levitt, a 195-pound junior, if Wittingham isn't ready by Saturday.

BYU will be drilling all week in hopes of pulling a big upset against COP. Special emphasis will be placed on defense in an effort to stop the spectacular running of half-back Dick Bass, the nation's leader in rushing and total offense.

According to a COP spokesman, the Tigers have "three of college football's greatest running backs and the best overall speed of any team in the school's history."

Braves Greeted By Very Few Die-Hard Fans

Only a meager handful of people met the Milwaukee Braves at the airport as they landed from New York City, after dropping two out of three clashes fought in Yankee Stadium.

The players were somewhat disappointed at the reception they received as only 350 "die-hards" turned out to greet the Braves.

However, the players felt that they would take the Series. Catcher Del Crandall admitted that the team was unhappy over their 7-0 loss to the Yankees Monday, but he says that the Braves will bounce back Wednesday. Manager Fred Haney summed it up by saying "our magic number is one and we have two chances at it."

Haney announced that Warren Spahn, who nipped the Yankees twice in Series play this year, will be on the bill for the World Champions. The "sly, old man of baseball," Casey Stengel of the Yankees has not announced his starting pitcher. However, it will probably be either Don Larsen, who whipped Bob Fust in the Yankee Stadium opener, or Ryne Duren, see, reliever.
